This week the Obama Administration announced their decision to deny a Presidential Permit to the Keystone XL Pipeline – prohibiting the construction of the pipeline. I am deeply, deeply disappointed that our President decided to put his politics above the nation's job creation and energy independence – the two things the Keystone Pipeline brings to the United States.

In response to this decision I had the opportunity to spread my message about the Keystone XL Pipeline. Follow these links to view my television interviews and to read the print articles. This isn't over. We're working towards restoring this project.
