The Republican Congressman Who Discovered He's Jewish: An Interview with Representative Lee Terry

By: Sara Lehmann

Published: April 4th, 2012

When Lee Terry began serving as a Republican congressman in 1999, representing Nebraska's second congressional district, he didn't realize he would become one of the House of Representatives' Jewish members. Always a friend of Israel, Terry discovered his Jewish roots some ten years ago and began a personal odyssey to reconnect with his heritage.

Terry, who lives in Omaha with his wife and three sons, currently serves on the House Energy and Commerce Committee and was elected vice chair of the Subcommittee on Communications and Technology.
