OMAHA, Neb. — The annual Small Business Resource Conference and Expo will be held this week in Omaha.

The event, sponsored by GOP Rep. Lee Terry, will begin at 8 a.m. (registration begins at 7:30) Friday at the Scott Conference Center on the University of Nebraska at Omaha campus.

Moderated by the Nebraska Business Development Center, the focus of the conference and expo is to give Nebraska small businesses innovative and practical ways to grow and market their products or services during challenging times.

Terry is slated to speak at the event shortly after it begins.

Participation is free.
