

WASHINGTON-

U.S. Rep. Lee Terry (R-NE) today announced he has joined forces with 15 of his House colleagues to form the bipartisan Missouri River flood working group. The group was formed to allow the members of Congress who represent areas impacted by the recent flooding of the Missouri River the chance to work together to investigate the cause of the historic flooding, as well as ways to effectively deal with its aftermath.

"I'm looking forward to working with my colleagues on both sides of the aisle and both sides of the Missouri River to find out the how and why we got to this point and how to make sure it never happens again. There are a lot of questions and we want to make sure we get the answers," Terry said.

Other members of the U.S. House Missouri River Flood Working Group are listed below:
