

OMAHA - Congressman Terry is pleased to announce that Robert Olson, Regional Director for the Economic Development Administration (EDA), has accepted his invitation to visit with Douglas and Sarpy county community leaders Wednesday.

"I will take this opportunity to showcase the tremendous opportunities for business growth and economic development in our communities," Terry said. "Our local economic development is the key to job creation, keeping unemployment low and encouraging an environment where more families can achieve their dreams."

Congressman Terry has arranged for Olson to tour the city, and has scheduled meetings with area business and community leaders, along with State and local officials to discuss EDA programs and economic development issues impacting our communities. Olson will be accompanied by Bob Cecil, Economic Development Representative for the EDA. The Greater Omaha Chamber of Commerce is hosting a majority of the meetings focused on development throughout the community, including Sarpy County, North Omaha and South Omaha.

The University of Nebraska-Omaha will also host Olson between 12 p.m. and 2 p.m. for a tour of the Peter Kiewit Institute and nearby Scott Technology Center.

Members of the press should contact Kristin Durbin for additional details about the scheduled visit.
