

WASHINGTON, DC - Today Congressman Lee Terry announced Charles Isom has joined his staff as Communications Director. Isom, who has worked in the communications offices of Senator Chuck Hagel, Reps. Bill Barrett, Chris Cannon, and Adrian Smith, is originally from Mullen, Nebraska, and will work out of Terry's Omaha office.

Isom will be responsible for the day-to-day management of the office's communications outreach and will serve as chief spokesman for Congressman Terry.

"Charles is a welcome addition to my Omaha office and brings years of experience dealing with both Nebraska-based and national media outlets. As a Nebraska native, he is familiar with the issues facing our state and the Second District. As a father like me, he understands the importance of the decisions made in Washington and the impact they will have on our children," said Congressman Terry.
