

WASHINGTON- Congressman Terry (NE-02) expressed great pleasure in the announcement by the Veterans Administration that Omaha company Leo A. Daly was awarded the contract for the planned new Omaha VA facility.

"This has been a project that I have pushed for many years, since coming to Congress. □ Our veterans deserve the best medical facilities that our nation can provide, and this new, modern facility will be able to deliver a level of first class health care. □ I am thrilled that Leo Daly will be a part of making this commitment to our veterans a reality," said Terry.

The design services provided by this selection, which includes the Leo A. Daly firm of Omaha, are for construction of a new bed tower, new parking garage, renovation of part of the existing main building, and demolition of some existing buildings.

This company, along with their partner on the project, NBBJ of Seattle, Washington, provides local as well as national experience in private and government medical facilities. Leo A. Daly has extensive experience in the Omaha area. Both firms have previously provided services for the VA, and both are recognized within the design community as leaders in the design of health care facilities.
