

OMAHA, Neb. -- The two sons of a lieutenant colonel who are comforting other children with teddy bears got an award on Sunday. Rep. Lee Terry Jr. gave Hunter and Carter Fangmeyer certificates for their work. It was in honor of two fallen soldiers who died fighting terrorists.

Hunter and Carter Fangmeyer came up with the idea to put a voice recorder in a teddy bear. They say it helped them while their dad, Lt. Col. Harlan Fangmeyer, was serving in Iraq.

The boys went to their church to ask for donations for Operation Voices and Love or Operation Oval.

The boys, their mother, and their older brother and sister have sent 261 Operation Oval Bears to children across the country.

The Fangmeyers want to send more bears but they need more donations. You can see their efforts at operationvoicesandlove.com.
