

State of play: House Republicans are holding their first hearing Wednesday on President Obama's decision to reject the Keystone XL oil pipeline, giving the GOP a high-profile opportunity to attack the administration for killing the project.

A panel of the House Energy and Commerce Committee will hear testimony from Kerri-Ann Jones, the State Department's Keystone point woman, about the decision.

To continue reading this article click here .